PAMELA KING ACCEPTS PROGRAM MANAGER POSITION

Fort Myers, Fla., (April 14, 2009) – Pamela King has recently accepted a promotion at Southwest Florida College as the Program Manager for Arts & Sciences/General Education.

King's new position will enable her to support the faculty in areas such as math, science and English disciplines, in addition to supporting the educational growth of her students.

King has been employed at Southwest Florida College for a little over a year and has held positions in Financial Aid and as a teacher for Freshmen Studies at the College before undertaking her new position as Program Manger.

She has an associate's degree in architectural engineering and a bachelor's degree in management of technology, both from Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston, Mass., as well as a master's degree in Higher Education from Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind.

In her free time, King enjoys spending time with her husband Kert, and her family members. She enjoys working on her new home and married life. When she can, King can be found windsurfing, boating and scrapbooking.

"I love the positive energy that so many faculty members are putting into action in their classrooms and the innovative initiatives that managers are doing in their departments at Southwest Florida College," said King.
